

New fears for Amy after 3-day bender

As pals worry Amy Winehouse is becoming hooked on surgery, the singer goes back to her boozy ways

JUST A FEW WEEKS AGO, Amy Winehouse had appeared clean and sober under the good influence of new man Reg Traviss.

The singer – who became infamous for her drink and drug addiction in the past – even told Closer in June: “He’s looking after me.”

But last week a worse-for-wear Amy was helped out of a London restaurant by movie director Reg, 33, after a three-day bender that at one point saw her collapse outside a pub and fall asleep on a bench.

Sources reveal glum Reg had to guide Amy out of Shaka Zulu on its opening night after she embarrassed guests by shouting during speeches and “could barely walk” by herself – sparking fears the singer is back on a path to self-destruction.

An onlooker tells Closer: “It was obvious Amy must have been caning it beforehand because she stumbled in smelling of drink and vomit.”

“She was in a real state, and was slurring and mumbling throughout the speeches. Reg couldn’t keep her under control and just had to lead her out.”

“She fell into a taxi, flashing her knickers and with her boobs falling out of her dress. It was like seeing the notorious out-of-control Amy of a couple of years ago.”

Pals now fear Amy has also found a new addiction in plastic surgery and believe she may have undergone as many as three boob jobs in just 10 months, and has also resorted to filler injections in her lips.

A friend says: “She had the first boob job in October and immediately said they weren’t big enough, even though the 32D implants looked huge on her tiny frame.”

And despite ending up in hospital because her implants started leaking, it wasn’t enough to put Amy off having more surgery.

The pal says: “She went back a couple of months later to get bigger implants and all her friends think she’s had a third boob job since as it’s obvious they’re even bigger now.”

“She’s had lip injections too as she really wants a ‘cartoon girl’ look.”

The friend adds: “Amy’s clearly got an addictive personality, but she never

Amy struggled to stay in her dress leaving Shaka Zulu

Closer NEWS

The singer was snapped passed out on a pub table

listens to anyone.”

Last year, the 26 year old had seemed to be back on track after spending time in the Caribbean hoping to kick her drug and alcohol addictions. At the time, her mum Janis told Closer: “Amy is taking control of her life. She’s in a good place.”

And after fears the troubled star was reuniting with drug addict husband Blake Fielder-Civil, she stepped out in public with Reg in June looking happy and healthy.

But pals say Amy’s benders are causing rows between the couple, and the singer was snapped looking emotional after also arguing with actress Mischa Barton during her three-day bender.

Now friends fear she’s slipping back into bad habits.

A pal says: “In the old days, it wasn’t unusual for her to order a quadruple shot in a single drink and down it. But no one wants her to self-destruct again.” ■

By Amy Swales
amy.swales@closermag.co.uk

Amy showing off her bigger bust, with new man Reg

A more flat-chested Amy in 2007